DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Lightning struck all around the town of Killingly, Friday, when state police and federal revenue men made the first raids for illicit stills in Windham county, but this town escaped an official visitation. One still was taken in a raid in the town of Thompson, another still in an advance by the officers on an isolated farmhouse in the Black Hill section of the town of Canterbury, At Central Village and at Mousup the officers made seizures of what is coming to be known as prohibition grape juice and also a quantity of Jamaica ginger.

The visits of the officers to villages in the town of Plainfield and the territory in that vicinity is believed to have been due to "tips" that came to them. They didn't seem to have much difficulty in walking straight to an illicit still in an isolated farmhouse out in the Black Hill district and locating it without any delay. This still was seized.

The officers would like to have interviewed one Daniel Blakely, who lives out in the Black Hill section, but who was in Central Village with his car when the officers started out from his place, a fact that he was not of, but they couldn't find him after they had seized the still, the ownership of which they were desirous of establishing.

At the home of Frank Shadrick in the Kennedy City section of Central Village, the officers seized a quantity of "moonshine." Shadrick was arrested, brought before Justice Torrey and fined $10 and costs, the charge being keeping with intent to sell.

The store of Habbe Abbeed in Mousup, a quantity of moonshine was seized; also about 200 bottles of Jamaica ginger. Abbeed also was arraigned before Justice Torrey and fined $10 and costs, on a charge of keeping with intent to sell.

Mrs. Grace Sweet, and John Tanner, town director of the Farmers' association in Sterling, are co-operating to bring about a worth-while agricultural meeting at the Oneco town hall, Tuesday, June 8th, at 8 o'clock. Fruit and Dairying will be the principal subjects discussed and there will be a chance to ask questions on both these subjects.

County Agent Frank L. Davis is trying to secure P. A. Campbell, dairy specialist of Storrs college, for a Dairying talk, and the county agent will give a talk on Diseases of the Orchard.

All societies of the church, the choir, altar boys, children of the parochial school and members of the parish will join Sunday, immediately following the solemn high mass, which begins at 10 a.m. in the procession of the Blessed Sacrament through the grounds of St. James' church property, in observance of the feast of Corpus Christi.

The Fernald company, operating what formerly was the old Whittemore mill at East Killingly, has begun to turn out its product. This industry will gradually expand and employ an increasing number of hands as the machinery is made ready for operation. The industry is one in which the people of Killingly are very much interested.

At Dayville a steam shovel has been engaged this week in cutting down the last remnants of an embankment that stood between the highway leading to Gayville and the recently built addition to the plant of the Asawawa company. The chance wrought there is a decided improvement in the highway.

Friday's raids established definitely for many in this territory who have been inclined to doubt the fact that there is a distilling industry in full bloom in Windham county. A Central Village official said Friday that moonshine whiskey has been selling openly for $2 a pint and the moonshine business in Westfield is believed to have been coming money, as the moonshine costs almost nothing to make.

Friday at noon a funeral service for Miss Alice P. Baldwin was conducted by Rev. J. T. Edwards, of the Baptist church, at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood on Academy street. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. Relatives and friends acted as bearers.

At the Danielson home on Water street Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, funeral services for Mrs. Willard Danielson, who died Tuesday, were conducted by Rev. W. B. Williams of the Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was the funeral director.

There has been a slowing up temporarily of building operations at off-year, but it is understood that this in no way indicates an abandonment of the big development plans that are under way there. By July, it is expected, the work will be in full swing and every effort will be made to complete the mill and dwelling houses that are planned before cold weather sets in.

Mrs. E. H. Keach had members of the Civic Federation at her home for a meeting.

PUTNAM

Raids on moonshine distillers are marking the week end in eastern Windham county and federal, state and local officers are engaged in uncovering violations of the law that have been openly justified for some time. Investigations of Friday demonstrate that prohibition is having the exact development that was predicted for it—the establishing of an illicit distilling industry in old Windham county, where such a practice was unheard of up to a few months ago.

Stanislaw Krakowski, 30, was held at the police station here during Friday to await the consideration of federal officials of charges that will be filed against him. Krakowski was taken in a raid on an abandoned farm in a sparse ly settled district of the town of Thompson, between the villages of North Grosvenordale and Wilsonville. In Webster Stanislaw Krakowski is being held on a charge of operating a whiskey still. It is said that he was engaged with Krakowski, Frank Astrouski and other men in operations around the farm where the raid was made.

Federal Agent H. F. Brown, Federal Agent McCarty, Lieut. Robert Bridgeport of the state police and constable Norri Codere conducted the raid on the farm in the Wilsonville district. In the raid the officers seized a still, a quantity of moonshine liquor and mash used for making 100 gallons of the illicit booze. It is said that quantities of moonshine whiskey that has been disposed of in territory as far north as Webster led to a search for illicit stills and the raid on the Wilsonville farm. Moonshine whiskey has been selling, it is reported, for as much as $9 a quart.

It was said that the officers regarded as having been profitable up to this time for the men who were deriving revenue from its product.

The farm where the raid was made is owned by Paul Weaver. He let the farm about three weeks ago to Stanislaw Krakowski, of Worcester, Frank Astrouski and Joe Cinkel, both of Webster.

When the raid was made Paul Krakowski was caught, the police say, working on the still. He said he would go out for the other men who were supposed to be in the barn and tell them to come in, but he went out, jumped a well and disappeared in the woods. Later he was apprehended in the woods. Chief Patrick is making the arrest.

Krakowski, who was arrested at the farm, was brought down to this city and locked up.

It does not appear as the result of the raid that Astrouski or Cinkel are involved in the charges that will be filed against Krakowski.

Constable Norri Codere of North Grosvenordale in telling about the raid said that when the officers arrived at the farm they found only Krakowski in a shed that might be used for a still, as the house on the farm burned down some years ago. The man was grinding up rations at the time, Officer Codere said, and the officers asked if they could buy a quart. Krakowski insisted that no liquor was for sale. The officers insisted they had been informed they could get it there and, Codere declares, Pulkowski said he would go out to the barn and confer with "the other man." He went out, jumped a wall and escaped to Webster, where he was later arrested. Krakowski was arrested at the farm and brought here.

During Friday Lieut. Bridgman and Federal Agents Brown and McCarty made raids in Mousup, Central Village and in the Black Hill section of Canterbury, as told elsewhere this morning.

held in the gymnasium. Luncheon is to be served at noon. The close of the school year will be marked at Pomfret school by the usual interesting program in which the students always take such delight.

A member of the town school committee issued a warning Friday to teachers against being induced to sign an agreement to take a correspondence course in school work, which agents of a western institution have been seeking to sell in this territory recently. One teacher already has become involved in difficulties as the result of her agreement to take this course, which is a safe one to take alone, a member of the school committee states.

The course is described as of little or no value to teachers engaged in work in Putnam or surrounding towns, but the cost of it in dollars is not at all moderate.

Just a few minutes after Friday was born a fire alarm called out the department to fight a fire that threatened to consume the automobile of Clement Gileon. The machine blazed up as Mr. Gileon was on his way home from a lodge meeting. Seeing a pall that he carried in the machine, Mr. Gileon did his best to extinguish the fire or keep it under control until the department could respond. The fire was put out before the machine had been materially damaged. Mr. Gileon said Friday morning.

Mrs. Jane C. Warner, Mrs. Alvena Barber and Capt. William R. MacDonald, a sub-committee representing the Putnam town school committee, have been in conference with F. J. Trinder, director of trade schools in Connecticut, relative to reorganizing the domestic science courses at the State Trade school in this city in its relation to the high school and grammar school courses. The result of this conference is a plan which will be submitted to the town school committee here for approval.
